ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system and method for controlling inclusion of email content. The sender of an email message may select email message text to be excluded from messages, e.g. a reply or forward, originating from a recipient of the message. Specific recipients may also be identified by a sender, whereby the sent message will be excluded from messages originating from the specific recipients. A computer-readable medium including instructions allowing email content exclusion is also provided.